Assignment #4: Project progress, work sample #2, and reflection

I have finished the yearbook and it is now being published and printed. I finished adding to the layout since my first project update, and I also took pictures of most missing staff. At the architecture firm, I have turned the office shelf into a 3-D model through Sketch-Up and I should be finished with that in a week or so. At both sites, I have done very well communicating with my mentors and other staff by asking questions when I am confused on something, or just asking if they ever need assistance on anything. I have also been very proactive because I know there is always something that I can do to help and I don't like wasting my time. I have constantly been revising my own work because other staff are busy doing their own tasks. So, in order for me to get critique at the firm and at the school, I revise most of my ideas individually. I look at things the way someone else might perceive it. I am not one to do something once and think I'm finished. I know that there can always be something added or changed about my work and I think that's kind of what makes me a perfectionist at times.
